THE DEATH OF ROBERT HARDIE.

We yesterday referred to an article in the Toronto World concerning the death last summer of Robert Hardie, of this city, in Arizona, in which article it was said that Canadian relatives of Mr. Hardie did not believe he had been killed by Indians, and were determined to "get at the bottom of the matter." An attempt was also made in the article to throw some discredit on Dr. Haynes, of this city, who was with Mr. Hardie and witnessed the murder. We also stated that we had considered it definitely settled that Indians did the deed. That such was the case cannot remain in doubt, after a perusal of the official correspondence relative to the death of Mr. Hardie, a portion of which has been published in THE TIMES.

It appears that a sister of Mr. Hardie, residing in Canada, who is the author of these rumors, is of somewhat unbalanced mind, and imagines that her brother was in possession of $100,000 when he died, whereas he was about $4000 in debt.

The correspondence shows that on July 25 Captain Lewis Johnson, commanding the post at San Carlos, telegraphed to Gen. Miles that an Indian named Sayes had been captured; that he was in a party that killed Hardie in Rucker Canyon; that "Kid" fired the fatal shot, Washlanta firing at Dr. Haynes and subsequently robbing Hardie's corpse of a watch. This information was forwarded by Gen. Miles to the Adjutant-General at Washington on the 27th. On August 16, in response to a request from W. H. Stilwell of Tombstone, forwarded through Agent Bullis at San Carlos, Capt. Johnson reports that Sayes and "Curley," another captured Indian, had been closely cross-examined and had confirmed the above statement. Sayes further said that, after the killing, "Kid" and Washlanta robbed the corpse, taking very little money, which "Kid" gave to his squaw. He beat the works out of Hardie's watch and gave the case to Washlanta, who cut it into strips for rings and other rude ornaments. Capt. Johnson also sends with the letter a small watch chain, which was found near Washlanta's body after a fight on July 17th, and this, Sayes said, was on Hardie's watch.

Dr. Haynes, who is a brother-in-law of the late Mr. Hardie, is a gentleman of means and of high reputation as a citizen and physician. The unfounded and totally unwarranted reports which have been placed in circulation in connection with this sad affair have naturally caused much pain to him and his family. The question should now, once for all, be considered as definitely settled.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM FAIR.

It is not because we have no other flowers to show in the month of November that Los Angeles is now holding a Chrysanthemum Fair, for in this favored clime the lily, the rose and the heliotrope perfume the atmosphere and delight the eye at Christmas, while the orange is ripening its golden fruit. The chrysanthemum is worthy of a show to itself. Like everything that comes from Japan, it is quaint. It is not a flower that dazzles one at first sight, but it improves with acquaintance, and its endless variations of color and form, when massed, delight the eye of all who are gifted with the power of perceiving the beautiful in nature. In Japan, the chrysanthemum competes for favor among the people with the blossoms of the cherry and the plum. It is the imperial flower, and enters very largely into the decorative work of that remarkable people.

The flowers which compose the main proportion of the Los Angeles exhibit have been grown and trained under the watchful care of two Japanese gardeners. All who admire a thing of beauty should visit the fair while it is open.

All citizens who have had much business with the city or county assessors and tax-collector's offices must have had cause to complain of the many vexatious mistakes in assessing property which add so largely to the burden of taxpaying. The trouble seems to a great extent due to the fact that it takes the average man quite a considerable time to master the intricacies of the business, and just about the time that he is capable he has to step out, in accordance with the American political law of the survival, not of the "fittest," but of the man who has the "pull" for the time being. Large government departments retain certain officials, who know the routine. In the interest of suffering taxpayers, a similar course should be followed in county offices.

The Republican parade and meeting on Saturday, when Col. Markham will address our people, in conjunction with other prominent Republicans, should be made the affair of the campaign in the State. Markham has had some wonderful receptions during his tour of the State, but we must outdo them here, in his home county. By tempering our enthusiasm with judicious organization the affair can be made a grand success—something to talk of in after years.

SUPPOSE Col. Markham did write to the superintendent of his mines to say he was glad that a set of unsatisfactory workmen—who happened to be Irish—had been discharged and replaced by another set, who happened to be Chinese, what then? Does this prove that Markham is an enemy of the white race? Bah! What puerile nonsense!

LOS ANGELES will enjoy a wealth of floral beauty during the next two weeks. Yesterday the Chrysanthemum Fair opened, and when that closes there will be a big flower show in Hazard's Pavilion.

SITTING BULL is rewarding the Government for its leniency by doing his best to incite a general massacre of the whites. A lady missionary from Boston is said to be petting the savage and making him more difficult to manage. Our Indian policy is, to a great extent, a bloody farce.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to call attention to the necessity of amending our school laws, so as to prevent, if possible, the too frequent occurrence of school districts appropriating more of the public school fund than they are entitled to through false census marshal reports. He specifies El Monte as one district which has continually drawn for more children than it has, and gives facts and figures in support of his statement.

THE following excellent advice to California farmers is from the San Francisco Call:

Farmers should combine in the construction of best root sugar factories, just as they do now for their cane and beet factories in California and cheese and butter factories in the Eastern States. There is no reason why the persons who raise should not have the full benefit of the bounty which the Government is to pay under the recent law enacted by Congress. The Call expects to witness the establishment of several such factories within the next two years.

THE Examiner has the following criticism of McAllister's preposterous book on the New York "Four Hundred":

Although such a book as the leader of the Four Hundred has published can hardly be considered admirable, it is of high scientific value. It is a work on entomology, written from the inside.

If you vote for Governor on the basis of labor advocacy, vote for Markham. While acting as superintendent of his mines, he employed only white men, and paid them good wages. Found employs nearly three hundred Chinese men.

POND maintains that he does not owe his nomination to "Mr. Buckley," but he is very careful not to say anything at all unpleasant about the boss whom all respectable Democrats denounce and disown. How is this?

If you vote for Governor on the basis of good economical government, vote for Markham; he is pledged to veto any measure that will expend money to exceed the rate of fifty cents on the $100.

THE Democratic papers don't like that story about Markham's generosity to a poor woman in Washington. They can't find a trace of anything like that in Pond's record.

THE Chronicle has introduced a new feature into the campaign, by publishing charts of candidate's heads, with the opinions of a phrenologist thereon.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE TRIBLE CLEF CONCERT.—Long before 7:30 p. m. last evening the Los Angeles Theater was full of the prettiest and wildest musical Angelinos. The bonnets were conspicuous by their absence and consequently the theater looked like a big fluting flower garden.

Exactly at 8 o'clock the programs were begun with Oester's "Invitation to the Dance."

The choral work here was somewhat weak, especially in the soprano, but was followed at each succeeding number by an excellence that almost defined criticism.

The third chorus, "Phenomena's 'Reverie,'" showed to the greatest degree the depth and breadth of tone in the choral work, and was sung with ease and fine accord.

Mr. Williams, the baritone soloist, followed with "The Song of the Lark" and "Dudley Buck" respectively. Mr. Williams sang with fine intonation, great sweetness and a perfect serenity, unaffected either by the ardor of the love song or by the vigor of young god Bacchus. Mr. Williams has so many fine and unusual qualities that it is to be hoped he will add to his list of his little more generously and sing with fire as well as sweetness. "The Song of the Sixpence" was given as an encore.

Handel's "Largo" with cello accompaniment closed the first half of a programme, whose only tendency was one of too great seriousness as it was to be followed by a long cantata.

The cantata of "The Enchanted Steep" produced as a whole an impression of care in technique, solidity of sound, attention to details, and much faithful practice. People who are not personally acquainted with Handel's music will find in this cantata a peculiarly interesting illustration of his peculiarities of instrumentation and harmonization, and his solo parts are always as good as they are beautiful.

The soprano, Mrs. J. J. Thayer, was not in her usual voice and the difficulties—never small—"of Elfrida's" part were apparent, as were also the perfect technique and appealing quality that make Mrs. Thayer's singing so agreeable.

Miss Stoneman shows much dramatic ability and delicate feeling for her part, but her voice is marred by a slight cloud that obscures some of its fullest and roundest tones. A voice of such such well-controlled pianissimo might be perfect throughout.

The most finished bit of the entire evening was undoubtedly "Chorus of Angels." The quartette sang as one, and the harmony was without a flaw.

The festive song, "The Voices of Misses Cochran and L. Kimball" sounded as delightfully as the Thrushes whose part they take in the story.

At the close of her recitation Miss Finney received a burst of irrepressible applause, which was fully deserved by her, for her easily imitating the one's four-horse team of a long and somewhat monotonous variety of the accompaniments were excellent as a whole.

The horse made a brief excursion to the unknown world of the four-horse team of the second season was such a well-kept secret of itself, of its leader, and of its audience.

GRAND OPERAHOUSE.—Cleveland's Colored Minstrels will open tonight, and play the remainder of the week, including a Saturday matinee.

Thrown From His Wagon. Yesterday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock a man named Frank Moore was taken to the police station by P. J. Bowland and booked for drunken treatment. Mr. Bowland was on his way home, and when near the Chahuanga Pass, found Moore lying on the side of the road, in an unconscious condition and apparently dangerously injured. The man's four-horse team had apparently run away, throwing him out. The horses were found near by tangled up in the harness, and the wagon considerably broken. The team was released, and Mr. Bowland loaded Moore into his spring wagon and carried him to the police station. Dr. Thein was summoned, and made a thorough examination, but could discern no injuries, and came to the conclusion that it was only a bad case of alcoholism. Moore was, however, kept at the station to give the physician a chance to make another examination.

IN OTHER LANDS.

Gladstone Discusses the McKinley Bill.

He Finds No Cause to Alarm British Manufacturers.

The King of Holland Declared Incompetent to Longer Rule.

Imperial Power Placed Temporarily With the Council of State—Stanley Still Indulges in Invective.

By Telegram to The Times.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] Gladstone arrived at Dundee today and was presented with the freedom of the city. He made an address, in which he referred to the commerce of the city, which he said was "threatened by the adoption of the new American tariff. He would not, however, he said, bring a railing accusation against the people of the United States. Protection, although it might inflict incidental collateral blows on other countries, did far greater mischief to the people of the country which adopted such a policy. Gladstone then proceeded to contrast the decrease in the tariff in England with the increase in the United States. He said he found comfort for England in the fact that it was true that any tariff adopted by any government on earth could interfere seriously with the prosperity of Great Britain. The first effect of the McKinley Bill would be to raise the standard of prices in the United States, and this means diminished power of exportation. This again meant that while we were damaged in one of our twenty markets we derived benefit in the other nineteen. Gladstone then proceeded to contrast the chalets of the United States to compete with British merchants in any of them, this being due to the augmentation of prices in the United States and the increased restraints under which the merchants of the latter country have to work. He advised the manufacturers to allow America to find out for herself the evil effects that will follow the adoption of a high tariff.

Gladstone then proceeded to discuss the idea of the consolidation of the whole British Empire, including the colonies and dependencies, against all foreign countries. He doubted much whether the whole empire would consent. Furthermore, although it would, to some extent, enlarge commerce with the colonies, it would contract it with the rest of the world. Imperial commerce is now 418,000,000 yearly, and foreign commerce 458,000,000.

One effect of the McKinley tariff would be to direct the attention of the British manufacturer toward the production of finer classes of goods, because these were the least intolerable to the duties of the latter country. He said he would be glad to see the British manufacturer, spurred them on and stimulate their ingenuity. The probable tendency among Americans would be toward more refined and more elegant goods, thus degrading their production. In spite of protection, the commerce between America and Great Britain has greatly increased.

He said that the McKinley Bill was a misnomer. It ought to be called the "Colonel" Bill, because it was a delusion and fraud. America was a country that could best afford to try this strange and astonishing experiment. Her natural wealth, soil, minerals and immense territory made her a world in herself. These enormous advantages helped to disguise the truth from the Americans; but the McKinley law forced them to face the fearful waste of resources, by which the people ought to be made strong and happy.

INDULGING IN INVUENDO.

Stanley Makes Further Insinuations Against Martell Bartlett.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] In an interview in the Telegraph, Stanley still indulges in invuendo, and evades the charge that he left the scene of the men with Bartlett. He declares that the bad state of the rear column was due to occurrences too horrible to describe. Answering the charges made by Troup, in America, Stanley accuses Troup of jealousy.

Stanley and wife sail for New York today. In an article in the Contemporary Review, Dr. Peters asserts that Stanley more than once threatened to shoot Martell Bartlett, and that he, Stanley, made several serious charges against Stanley.
